

ABSTRACT:

A method and system for intelligently distributing content over a communications network to efficiently publish, delete and restore content on a web site. The system and method provides zero-down time publishing and consistent 5 content during the updating (publishing, deleting or restoring) process.